Criticized congressional public hearing aboard Norfolk aircraft carrier is now private

NORFOLK

A congressional hearing slated for Monday aboard a Norfolk-based aircraft carrier at the request of U.S. Rep. Randy Forbes, who is seeking election in the 2nd Congressional District, has been changed to a private meeting, Forbes’ office said Friday.

The public hearing, which was removed from the House Armed Services Committee’s public calendar Friday, will instead be a private question-and-answer session with the same Navy officers who would have testified at the hearing and a group of U.S. House of Representatives members at Norfolk Naval Station. The change was made after the office of Defense Secretary Ashton Carter objected to a public hearing with news media coverage, Forbes’ office said.

A Defense Department spokeswoman said calling off the public hearing was solely the choice of legislators after talking with Pentagon attorneys about how to “mitigate” criticism that Forbes’ committee hearing was happening on a Navy base just before the June 14 GOP primary election in which Forbes is a candidate.
